How to Use the Federal Scholarship Tax Credit Education Guides

Audience:

School and homeschool group leaders, church staff, family ministry leaders, communications teams.

Purpose of These Guides

These guides were created to help families, schools, and donors understand the Federal Scholarship Tax Credit clearly and responsibly.

They are educational resources. They are not fundraising materials, advocacy tools, or participation agreements. Their purpose is to build understanding, reduce confusion, and provide trustworthy information as the program moves toward implementation.

When to Share These Guides

These materials are appropriate to share when:

- Families are asking questions about education affordability.
- Schools want to proactively address uncertainty or misinformation.
- Churches are supporting parents in their responsibility for their children's formation.
- Donors are seeking clarity, not activation.

They are especially helpful before application timelines or donation pathways are established.

How to Share These Guides

You may:

- Email to families, donors, or school communities.
- Post them on your website or parent portal.
- Include them in newsletters or resource libraries.
- Distribute them as PDFs at meetings or information sessions.

Please do not edit or customize the content.

No Commitment Required

Sharing these guides does not:

- Commit your organization to participate in the program.
- Require families or donors to take action.
- Replace legal or tax advice.
- Signal that scholarships are immediately available.

- Each guide stands on its own and may be shared independently.
- Their role is informational, not transactional.

Which Guide to Use

Family Guide:

Use with parents and caregivers seeking clarity and reassurance.

School Administrator Guide:

Use with heads of school, boards, and finance teams.

Donor Guide:

Use with individuals or advisors exploring how the program works.
